THE AMERICAN WAY ___ These tours offer opportunity to see Europe the American way, the way Americans require, with assurances of careful and complete advance arrangements. The American Express Company has offices in twenty-one of the chief cities of Europe. AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS_For twenty years these offices have served the American traveler as headquarters for his mail, his social and business engagements, his banking and money, his tickets, baggage and other travel facilities. Now, as always, they offer you an AMERICAN WELCOME.

AMERICAN LEADERS Your travel fortunes will be in the hands of Americans, experts in the travel field, who know Europe both the Europe that was, and the Europe of 1919. The men in charge of our tours to the Battlefronts were officers connected with the Visitors' Bureau of the A. E. F.

AN AMERICAN RECORD __ The Travelers Cheques of the American Express Company were carried in Europe by more than 100,000 Americans in 1914 and when the sudden declaration of war closed the banks of Europe and made money unavailable, those who carried American Express Cheques were promptly PAID IN FULL. This record of efficiency is only one indication of the far-reaching facilities of the American Express Organization in Europe and of our preparation to meet the needs of the American traveler and to make his requirements our care.

Register now for Spring or Summer tours to Europe.

Flounders at Cold Spring Harbor.

After a very busy week in Wall street a friend invited me on a combination motoring and fishing trip. We took our families along and after motoring all day Saturday we stopped at a hotel-overnight and on Sunday we pulled in at Cold Spring Harbor, L. L. and fished most of the day. Flounders were biting good gnd, believe me, I had a great day. We brought along a broiler and cooked the fish right on the beach. We had some fine lunch and quite a few fish to carry home. I will say that Cold Spring Harbor is the piace right now to gather in flounders and hope that some of the readers of the Rod and Gun will avail themselves of this splendid opportu-

Grasshopper Lured Rainbow King.

Rod and Gun readers may be interested in the manner in which J. A. Molntyre, who used to live near Haw Creek, Swain county, North Carolina, got his 23-inch rainbow trout. Mr. McIntyre tells the story as follows:

"Up Haw Creek one-half mile is a small hole near the end of one of the numerous bridges—a log lying out in the hole. I went by it six and eight times a week, but never saw anything in it and wondered why.

Why is angling?" asks Leonard Hullt in the Asbury Park Flahing Club's year book. Mr. Hullt proceeds to answer his question as follows:
"Generations of men have asked the above question. Succeeding generations have replied. Yet it to-day remains unswered in its fullest sense.
"The man wise in the ways of the world casting with expensive tackle over swirling mountain pools in quest of the lordly salmon or strolling through flower bedecked countryside casting the fly to fall like thistle down on the question to the lock, can no more answer the question.

thistle down on the quieter meadow stream a lure for the speckled pet of the brook, can no more answer the question than can the barefoot, freckled face boy who with aider pole cut from the adjacent swamp yanks out the humble catty from the muddy stream.

"All have felt the call and each in curn feels the God-implanted love of 'angling' as their very souls laugh with joy over the freedom of mind and body in the open sunshine by the brookside or at the foot of the mighty sea.

"Thus, it is not all of fishing to 'catch fish,' it is rather catching fish through love of fishing. Whether devotee of the lightest of tackle for the taking of trout and fellows of its kind or the sturdler sort essential to sea taste, all have received the same call to the open.

"In these days of congested civilization, when lake and stream are being rapidly depleted of their finny inhabitants, there is potentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the sturdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the sturdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the sturdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the sturdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the sturdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the surdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the surdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the surdler sort essentially sufficient in this vast army of out of door lovers to see to it that every the condition of the surdler sort essential to the properties of the surdler sort estable and th

Pollution of Local Waters.

Pollution of Local Waters.

The city and the State authorities should cooperate with the Conservation Commission, it seems to me, to stop the pollution of the Hudson River and New York Bay.
Years ago the anglers of New York and Staten Island could troil over the Staten Island waters and he sure of bringing home a couple of striped hass, or during the summer season strike into a school of hiusish.

The oil and dregs of crude oil new cover the waters to such an extent that the water is unclean even to bathe in, let alone induce fish to swim in these once productive waters. An enlightened public opinion ought to get back of organizations like the Merchants' Association and the pollution committee of the Conservation Commission and aid in restoring these waters so that at least fish will live in them.
